CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MUST MOVE TO HAVE ENOUGH ROOM

City delays move to change polling place

Members of the Belle Glade City Commission delayed action Monday night on an ordinance which would change the city's polling place from the First Station to the Municipal Center. City officials after a protest the center isn't centrally located.

Businessman W. C. Taylor said he had met with a group of disgruntled citizens and they feel the center is too far from the Southwest section of the city.

Taylor asked that the city commission consider instead, setting up two polling places, one at the municipal civic center and the Lake Shore Civic Center.

The commission agreed after the last city election to change the polling place on grounds the First Station doesn't have enough room, lacks suitable facilities, isn't air-conditioned and lack sufficient security.

Taylor said he agreed the station is inadequate but said the proposed poll would be too far away for many people to conveniently travel to their ballots.

City Attorney John Baker said the problem is that the City Charter stipulates the city shall have one polling place and to change that, the city would need either a referendum or a special act by the state legislature.

The commissioners decided to delay action on the Tax deadline near

Palm Beach County Tax Assessor David Reid said homestead exemption, as well as a variety of other possible types of exemptions, must be renewed by Monday.

Should a person wait until past the Mar. 1 deadline to claim an exemption, full taxes must be paid.

Reid said the exemptions may be filed by mail, if a person has done so in the past and a renewal card has been mailed to him.

If no renewal card has been sent, Glades residents must file in person, either at the Palm Beach County Glades Office Building on North US 441 or the County Courthouse in West Palm Beach.

Other forms of exemptions, besides Homestead Exemption, include exemptions for senior citizens, widows, disabled veterans, for agricultural green belt property and for tangible personal property.

ordinance until the Mar. 15 meeting in the hope of getting more public opinion while the commission is given more time to consider possible alternatives.

In another meeting job, the commission was asked by Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce President Roy Burch to give help on moving the chamber's poll to Macdonald Park, preferably in the northeast corner.

Burch said there chamber is considering two alternatives, either physically moving the poll or having it rebuilt/rebuilding on the spot.

At the commission's request, Burch said the present will look deeper into the possibilities and get together with them in their next work session.

Ford sets WPB tour

Gaines area voters will have a chance to see President Gerald R. Ford "up close" for a short time. Saturday when the President lands in West Palm Beach to make a rapid motorcade trip south to Miami.

Ford, West Palm Beach

Campaign Headquarters announced today the President will be landing at Palm Beach International Airport in AIA Field. One hour later noon Saturday and will begin his whistle stop tour at Palm Beach Mall at about 12:30 p.m.

After his quick appearance, Ford will begin his move south in a motorcade which will make short stops at a number of places in his effort to win the Florida Presidential Conference Primary on Mar. 9.

He will be at Lake Worth

City Hall at 1:15 p.m., at Lantana Bicentennial Park at 1:30 p.m., at Ocean Ridge Town Center at 1:45 p.m. and will move south from there.

High school bands are being invited to play along the route at various stops.

City will build a garbage hill

Belle Glade is going to build a hill...with garbage.

Because the Glades aren't exactly known as the foothills of the Smokies, future Belle Gladians may be able to point with justifiable pride at the highest point in South Florida and certainly the highest in the Glades.

City Manager George Knoblock announced the coming of the hill, actually a three-sided pyramid with a road leading to a top of 40 feet. Mondays, he said, and it is expected to be completed by sometime in 1977, probably sometime in the summer.

Knoblock said the pyramid was designed by the engineering company of Post, Buckley, Shuh and Jernigan to top off the city's sanitary landfill. It will be built in four 10-foot thick cells and will be 40 feet high at the top, 12 feet higher than the nearby Herbert Hoover Dike.

Knoblock said the pyramid will be built atop the present site of the city landfill, which is already completely filling an old rock pit.

To keep an eye out that impurities aren't leached into the nearby Hillsboro Canal, the city will also sink two pairs of test wells, one pair 28 feet deep and the other 30 feet deep, and will take periodic tests from the wells.

The city now has a temporary operating permit to continue dumping solid waste on the present site and Knoblock said the permit calls for a number of rigid rules.

The garbage and trash must be covered with six inches of fill each day.

The city presently uses bagasse given by Quaker Oats' flour plant. Between each call of the pyramid, there will be two feet of fill, probably sand, will cap the pyramid.

In the meantime, the city, along with South Bay and Pahokee, have asked the Palm Beach County Solid Waste Authority to find a more permanent solution to the disposal problem.

Authority Executive Director Tim Hunt has already presented a plan to build a $1.45 million forced-air incinerator to handle all the garbage and trash generated by western Palm Beach County.

Hunt presented that plan to the authority members Wednesday and the authority will meet in Belle Glade Mar. 10 with the three western cities to go over the proposal.

According to that proposal, the authority would be financed, operated and maintained by the authority. Hunt said he would try to get financial assistance from the state and Farmer's Home Administration in the form of grants and or loans.

The Authority took the step after all three cities sent resolutions asking the authority to find a solution, with input from the cities, to the Glades' solid waste disposal problems.

Hunt's proposal, however, fails to mention anything about input from the cities. Knoblock said this will probably be brought up during the Mar. 10 meeting and Mayor William Grear said Monday night this would be essential.

Hunt drew up two possible plans to finance the project, one with no outside help and the other with 50 per cent being paid for on the federal level and 50 per cent being paid for locally.

Hunt estimated the incinerator could handle 100 tons per day at a cost of $5.63 per ton. He said the 100 tons of garbage and trash would be reduced from approximately 1,200 cubic yards to 375 yards of inert ash, which would be disposed of on the ten-acre site being proposed.

The modular incinerator would be of the same type now being used in Pahokee. Pahokee is using a Consumat 15-ton incinerator.

But, even if the incinerator plan is adopted by the cities cooperative, and Pahokee may not, Knoblock made it clear it wouldn't be the only answer, that a landfill would still be needed.

"You still have things like refrigerators and old appliances to take care of," he said, "and those obviously wouldn't go in the incinerator." He said there would also be other items such as large tree limbs which the incinerator couldn't handle, and which must be disposed of.

Belle Glade walkathon plans bein laid

With only three weeks left to work in an effort to get Belle Glade involved in the annual March of Dimes Glades Walkathon, Melvin Stevenson and Johnnie Rutledge began their preparations several days ago.

On Tuesday afternoon that someone could be found to head up the walk from the Belle Glade end.

Elizabeth Skauth, representing the March in Belle Glade, was joined by little Christopher Miller, the Palm Beach County Poster Child to drum up support for the walk. Glades Central High School.

Mrs. Skauth said at that time she was attempting to find someone to head up the Belle Glade end of the walk between Belle Glade and Pahokee.

She announced Wednesday morning that Mr. and Mrs. James Huggins of 1608 S. St. Asa G. will step up the drums here. The Huggins have been actively involved in the last three walkathons and Huggins said Wednesday he didn't want to see the annual event die for lack of workers.

"We're going to need all the help we can get," he said.

Members of the former March of Dimes Glades Advisory Committee were reached by calling 996-3714 or, if there is no answer before to give us a hand."

He said or his wife can be there, at 996-2076.

Members of the former March of Dimes Glades Advisory Committee were asked to contact Huggins or his wife and he said they also need the help of anyone or any group willing to work on the march.

All is needed in the form of providing food, people to man the checkpoints along the line of the walkathon and to register the walkers before they begin.

Huggins said he request cash donations and his and his wife hadn't time to personally request help from anyone as yet. He said those requests will be forthcoming.

So why does a CB make such a perfect gift for an elderly lady as Grannie, when so many women her age are kept company through the day by the soap operas on television?

Retiring early, Grannie usually is up and around by 3 to 4 a.m. but these days, she's kept company about that time by listening to the CB. Skip, for example, is in the morning. CB'ers listen to other CB'ers from a long distance, sometimes as far away as South America or Canada.

Then comes that second cup of coffee and chit chat and the final, "Three and eights to you, may God bless you." I'll be on this two channel just copying radio readings of gospel music and Bible readings.

The ratcheting motor-mouthing over citizens hand radio airwaves in the Belle Glade area are learning that when "Grannie" advises them she's in the rocking chair, she doesn't mean she's sitting back from the front door and the back door...even if that's where she is.

Because when she says she's in the rocking chair base, she means she's actually in a rocking chair and not perched 12 feet off the ground pushing an 18-wheeler through the night over US 441 in the middle of a string of gearjammers. Grannie is what just about

Social Chatter

By Maude Vereen

The guest-speaker at the youth day service Sunday at the Mt. Zion A.M.E. Church was Miss Carolyn Smart of West Palm Beach. Her message was "Teach Commandments" and to "Honor God first."

1. Honor: Honor God first and man second. Put God first.

2. Obey: There is no excuse for disobedience if one follows God's way for it is better to obey than to sacrifice.

3. Live: Everyone is born dead, spiritually dead until God enters his life and then one is born in Christ.

4. Think: Ask who am I going?

5. Work: God told man he must labor.

6. Love: God is love.

7. Serve: Some people say we all have gifts and can all get you," but the Bible says to "serve".

8. Listen: Don't be like Eve. She listened to the serpent before she acted or ate the fruit.

9. Plan: Have a plan for your life.

10. Stand: Stand for something. Stand for right, stand firm.

After outlining the ten rules, Miss Smart stated that in order to keep these ten rules, you must be born again. A new birth and it's amazing how happy you will be to know you will be a new creature.

Andrew Vereen of Orlando and his son Andrew Jr. spent the weekend here with his relatives and friends and while here he and Shirley motored to Miami to see Marcelli.

A burning problem.....

Whether or not Belle Glade, South Bay, and Phosphates decide to go along with the plan to use a common incinerator to handle garbage and trash problems in the Glades, those plans will clearly need to be amended.

Although the cities, when they asked help from the Palm Beach County Solid Waste Authority, stated they would also provide input, there is not room left in the document presented the authority by Director Tim Hunt for such input.

The incinerator will probably be the best way to dispose of solid waste in the Glades, but if the cities simply turn it over to the Solid Waste Authority to own and operate, there's bound to be a problem.

The three cities obviously can't afford such a move. They would be subject to the whims of the authority and how they could use the incinerator, when, how much they could bring, what kind of rubbish would be accepted and what the pricing would be.

Such a situation is unacceptable.

We believe the cities will demand some form of a partnership between themselves and the Solid Waste Authority. We certainly hope so.

But if they expect to make their input meaningful, they're going to have to do so at the earliest opportunity and that will be at the May 10 meeting the authority is going to hold in Glades.

Garbage and trash disposal problems are nothing new to the Glades and they're not going to go away. It isn't the type of problem that can be postponed either.

It is too important a problem to trust a group of strangers living 50 miles away to solve on their own.

Clearing up the muddy waters...

While most Floridians who go to the polls on Mar. 9 will be thinking about the Presidential Preferential Primary, there will be another matter for them to decide which could well be more important than the big guns of the two political parties.

Also included on the ballot will be an amendment to the state constitution allowing the five water districts set up by legislation in 1972 to support themselves by levying up to one mill in ad valorem taxes.

"There is not one issue more important to the people of this state," State Senator Phil Lewis has wisely quoted as saying, "than this issue of Mar. 9."

Phil Lewis is a man with the reputation of being right more often than wrong and we don't believe he's overstated the case here.

We feel we need a lot of things but one thing we can't do without is water. The magic fluid is Florida's most precious resource.

It's one resource which must, absolutely must, be managed wisely and well. That's why the legislature set up five water management districts, including the two already existing.

That means water must be paid for somehow; not by the legislature on an annual basis because water is too important to be put into a position where it must compete with other budgetary items.

There are, of course, arguments against the amendment, and some of them are good ones. The referendum wouldn't be controversial if this weren't the case.

But we believe, as Attorney General Robert Shevin said in Belle Glade Sunday, that on balance, the advantages far outweigh the disadvantages.

This is one amendment we most strongly endorse.

I had occasion to attend a class reunion a few weeks ago. As a rule, I avoid such festivities. But I was given enough advance notice this time that I decided to go ahead. At nine P.M., each night for two weeks, learn how to apply makeup and fasted for the same period of time so that I closely resembled the youthful figure I cut during my college days.

I spent a week planning out my success story and by the time of the day of the reunion rolled around, I was an extremely youthful fifty year old who had become a millionaire.

What I had not counted on was that everyone else had done exactly the same thing.

George Willoughby, the class idiot, had made a fortune selling used light bulbs. Clyde Huffmaster was a successful entrepreneur. Simpkins was a successful dealer in rare metals (I later determined he owned a junk yard) and Harold Carsairs was a real estate tycoon (he owned a 5 acre swamp).

But the one man who had obviously no need to concoct a story was Willis Ingerbuck. He exuded wealth. He had made a financial mark on the world by having a corner on the rubber band market.

Our conversation went something like this:

"See this suit?" Willis asked "it retails for $200, but I paid $250 for it. My shoes are worth $60 but I paid $100. My shirt costs $15 without the monogram, but the monogram cost me $50."

I could see I was at a disadvantage. My suit regularly costs $80 but I got it for $30 at a fire sale, my shoes I had borrowed from an undertaker and had to return them before the weekend so his "client" wouldn't be "put under" barefoot, my shirt had a large tear in the back and I'd bought it for 5 cents at a church rummage sale. I was in trouble.

"Why do you pay so much more than is necessary?" I asked.

"Well, when you go to pay a little more to support your standing in the community," he answered.

I searched my brain. I had to go him one better. I stood in a trance for more than five minutes. Then it dawned on me.

"I care not what my standing in the community may be. I'm more civic minded. I care about my community in relation to other communities, therefore I live in a community of 20,000 people. It pays if city politicians the fourth highest salary in the state including some cities with populations in the hundreds of thousands. Why, we're so rich we've even allowed them a retirement plan! We are very civic minded! We want to pay a lot for our politicians. It doesn't matter whether or not they've earned it."

You, me and your exorbitant, are making a contribution to the money we pour out for local government. I think it's time you stopped thinking of yourself and work toward the enviable end of having the luxury of overpaid political offices. Your community will admire you if you worked for such an end and stopped your self patronage."

He was disconcerted. I had betrayed him. The expression of utter defeat on his face was beautiful. I left feeling that at the next class reunion I would find a broken, disconsolate and financially distraught man in the place of Willis Ingerbuck. I'm sure he's taken my speech in civic pride to heart and will try to give me one better in his community.

Dear Mr. Reeves:

On behalf of the members of the Belle Glade, Junior Woman's Club, I would like to publicly thank all members of our community who donated items to send to Guatemala to help the earthquake survivors.

Individuals, civic groups, sororities, chapters, church and business groups, one helped us in some way. The Juniors packed a total of 82 boxes, which were picked up last Saturday by the Salvation Army and will be sent directly to Guatemala.

Please express our great appreciation to all who participated, and most particularly to our new Fire Chief.

Pete Webb, and his firemen who not only let us use space at the Fire Station for sorting and packing, but also cheerfully lent a hand as needed.

Thank you for the publicity given to the collection process by your newspaper and other media, we would never have been able to reach as many generous people and would have had to rely on the public to do the work.

Sincerely,
Sandi Roots

On that date nearly 800 students from the Belle Glade Central High School for an Asolo Theater production presented at that school.

Patrol cars were stationed at critical points and officers safely escorted the students the entire way.

Our faculty joins me in commending the fine officers who took part in this effort.

Dear Mr. Jones:
I recently learned that you were selected by the Agribusiness Institute of America to receive the presentation of its annual media award. Everyone who is aware of your work knows what a well deserved tribute this is and we would like to thank you for the opportunity to extend our congratulations.

Without a doubt, you and your paper have developed a leadership position in agricultural news coverage, and have sought, successfully, to present a fair and comprehensive picture of the role of agriculture in Florida and America today. There is no greater service to agriculture today than such an endeavor, and everyone involved with the industry owes a debt to you.

The future will bring more challenges for agriculture, and I am optimistic about our ability to deal with them, especially with the support of persons such as yourself. Again, congratulations on the award.

Sincerely yours,

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

Considering this is leap year, and leap day is almost amongst us, I guess some people figger this is a good time to jump.

Matter of fact, there was an article in Saturday's Miami Herald about a guy that decided if he 'uz gonna jump, he might as well jump all over the federal Guv'mint.

That's a fair sized jump but looks like the feller made it with a little help from the local U.S. Judge. (Wonder if that was one of those judges who are suing the United States for the pay?)

Thing is, I liked about the whole thing was he decided to wrap the Guv'mint up in red tape. Hee, hee, talk about poetic justice.

What he did, if you were among the unfortunate ones who missed the article, was refuse to let some of them OSHA gents inspect his place of business unless they filled out several long forms he'd come up with.

Everbody know it's Big Guv'mint that comes up with all the long forms and when the shoe was on the other foot, you shoulda heard Big Brother squalling.

Those inspectors ranted and raved. They showed our Hero credentials and invited him to make a phone call to their office so they could prove they wuz.

"Every day you substitute a credit card and a phone call on your income tax forms?"

Hee, hee and hoo. Not to mention a chortle and a guffaw.

"No dice," fellers, Cool Hand Luke, he say, "fill out the forms and we'll see about letting you aboard to eyeball the place. But until you can prove who you are to MY satisfaction don't come sucking around here darkening up my front door stoop!"

Well, that's never!! Give OSHA, with all the dignified and awesome bufoonery the majestic of the Imperial forces of His Most Boondoggling Majesty, along with a few amber waves of grain thrown in, took Superbusinessman to court...federal court natchery!

Well, lo and behold! Here comes this good ole boy in all his black, flowing robes saying, "Yeah. You guys from OSHA wants inspect this guy's premises, you gotta satisfy him you who you say is. You gotta right to put red tape in front of ever' body else, gotta right to stick some crimson ribbon in your path too."

Course, I sorta doubt Uncle Sugan gonna take all this lying down. They probly gonna take it all the way to the Supreme Court and maybe Oregon and the White House. And by gosh, if they ain't far enough, they'll take it to Aspen.

After all, think what it'll mean if this dude is successful.

Can you imagine demanding an funnel Revenoer show you his birth certificate and pass a written test before you answer any questions about your income tax or your earnings?

Stick that in your Form 1040 and smoke it!

Better yet, can you imagine all the taxpayers in this country working up a form just as long and complicated as the 1040 is and requiring the IRS to fill it out or you won't pay any income tax? And every one of those forms were different?

And can you imagine what it'd be like if we said we're gonna work out a new form every year, with every one more complicated than the last until the Guv'mint simplifies income taxes so John Doe down the street can understand it and the millions in the country start paying the same percentage of their earnings we do?

Even the President. Yeah, man. Let him pay just like everybody else and forget all this mess about loopholes and expense accounts and all that flummery. Man, we'd have half the IRS men on unemployment but that's all right too. Give 'em something useful to do instead of that.

Tax everyone the same and you'd have the Bicentennial. You wouldn't wait. I don't know about you but I can think of a better way to celebrate the Bicentennial. Have a revolution.

Well come!

Glades Central season, 15-10 wound up a 15-10 regular season with a squeaker against Ft. Pierce Central, 80-78.

Two Glades Central basketball players were named to Michael Pringle and William Likely won their way to the honor squad on the strength of their play all through the season. Both of the players have consistently scored in the double figures and pulled in large numbers of rebounds.

The 6 foot, 4 inch Pringle set a school record of 40 points in a game against Ft. Pierce Central, 80-78.

Pringle was named Athlete of the Week for his efforts in that game, the best he's had in his high school career.

Coch Jay Seider said the coaches and coaches met Monday night to name the honor team.

Seider said everything was even in the Fort Pierce game except for the free throws. He said the Raiders scored two more than the Raiders...the difference in the score.

"I'm pretty proud of the team," Seider said. "They kept things in spite of a big difference in size. They managed to work the ball around. It would have been a nice game to win but we were looking forward to the districts."

Melvin Stevenson had an outstanding game against the Fort Pierce five, sinking enough baskets to earn him 29 points while also managing to sink down six rebounds.

Stevenson followed by Likely with 21 points and 12 rebounds and Pringle made 10 points and 17 rebounds.

In A flight, Melk said Chuck Royal and Terry Crawford of Belle Glade beat the Clewiston team of Joe Arrica, 36, 64, 62.

75, 61.

The winning team in B Flight was Silva and Peggy Wedgworth of Belle Glade, who beat out Bobby and Linda Hocken and Bobbi Glade with a score on 76, 64.

Finalists in the main flight were Charles Hall and Dougwynd Wighty and Gene Duff and Carla Bunnell.

A flight semi-finalists were the teams of John and Audrey Lieb of Jupiter and Richard and Berry Hurd.

B flight semi-finalists were Alberto Serra and Sylvia Bridgette and Roy Wedgworth and Otilia Gimenez.

Now I've met the big man himself.

Got off the big thrill of my life the other night when I actually met Coach Don Shula, the coach of the Miami Dolphins, and the best coach in Clewiston. For some of you who may not know who Coach Shula is, he is the coach of the Miami Dolphins, and the best coach around nowadays I might add - contrary to what some others may think.

I was so excited upon recognizing him, I am ashamed to admit I got so nervous shaking record to the right, I almost forgot per cent of their efforts compared to 49 percent for the Cobras.

"I'm pretty proud of the team," Seider said. "They kept things in spite of a big difference in size. They managed to work the ball around. It would have been a nice game to win but we were looking forward to the districts."

"I think he went that away," directed Karen.

Seign, Don Shula, after friend of the room. "Uh, Mr. Shula, can I please have your autograph? Here, I have a pen and a card."

"Sure," Shula grins. "Say, haven't I seen you some place before?"

"Oh, I don't think so sir. As many people you've seen, as all the faces begin to look alike."

"I'm sure I've seen you somewhere," he replies with a puzzled look. "Aha! I saw you right here in this restaurant a few years ago!"

"Come to think of it, you haven't," replies Karen. "Only we didn't get a chance to talk much."

"No, we didn't," he grins. "Well, how about having dinner with my family and me? A lot has happened since then."

"It sure has," Karen states. "The Dolphins have won the Super three straight games since then, as a matter of fact. It's been four years since we met, and if you don't mind I have some questions to ask about the team."

"Fine. Come along. They have our table reserved."

"We'll just one minute sir. When I go tell him at the Old South (surely he'll be there again) now that I know he has a business here."

"Running back she gasps.

"Running back she gasps.

"I'm on top of the world," grins Shula. "Now, not even Pete Rozelle, Jr. will touch me."

"Do you think you can manage it again next season?"

"Well, all I can say is I am really gonna try. Of course, it's certainly harder now than it was last year, but we are stronger for this team. It also makes the boys work harder."

"Show boy!! Oh, you mean Don Shula - where?"

"In there, waiting for a table. See? Right by the singing bird."

"Hey, it sure is. Gotta be Shula. Don Shula's in there. Look!"

"Sally rushes to the door and peers inside. "Sue looks like him."

Angie comes up. "Who are you talking about?" Upon hearing about Coach Shula she replies "Don Shula?" incredulously. "Y'all must be off your rocker, it can't be him."

At that point Doris takes out her wallet. "Well, I'm gonna find out - I'll ask him for his autograph."

"Oh, let me have a card too," cries Karen. "I want his autograph."

"But you got his autograph last time," Rhonine argued.

"What's the difference? He won't remember me," retorted Karen.

"And besides, I've got some questions for him this time."

"I can't be him," insisted Angie.

"Wanta lay some money on it?" asks Karen.

"Uh-huh. I may be a sucker once, but not twice."

Karen asks the others

"Who's going in with me?"

"I will," replied Sally.

"Come on Doris, give me a card," says Karen.

harder."

"In your opinion, who will be the top contenders for the Super Bowl next year?"

"Now that's hard to say. Any team can be 0 and 5 and then turn around and begin to win and before you know it, it's in the playoffs. But getting to the point, I think San Diego and Cleveland will be the two of the contenders for the playoffs - yes, these two teams have really come along in the last couple of years."

Growing on a bone Karen continues. "Do you think you'll be trading any of your veterans?"

"Aww, no, I don't plan on it. Grier's still doing a wonderful job and Morrall, although he's pushing 50, is still one of the greatest backup quarterbacks in the National Football League," she says. "Don't forget Don Strock." The front line of the Dolphins cannot be penetrated and we just have a fine team on the whole. I think we'll keep all we have."

"How does he feel about the new stadium that was built to house the Dolphins?"

"Oh, it's wonderful. The turf's just great and the stadium seats have foam padding to make them far more comfortable. I don't know if you've noticed, but there's been a sellout at every game."

Shevin pushes water management plan

Florida Attorney General Robert Shevin came to Belle Glade Sunday and made it plain to members of WATER! that while he wasn't completely happy with the Sept. 9 referendum which would give taxing powers to five water management areas around the state, he is still in favor of it.

After giving a brief speech on water resources and management to the members of the coalition of environmentalist and political groups, Shevin used about half an hour fielding questions, mostly about the ad valorem referendum.

The group was holding its fourth meeting and the first part of the meeting was taken up with organizational activities. Members groups include several Audubon Societies, the Sierra Club, Defenders of the Florida Environment, the Izaak Walton League, the Florida Federation of Wildlife and the League of Women Voters.

The group, numbering about 75 in all, gave Shevin a standing ovation for Shevin following his speech and it wasn't until the question-and-answer period that any disagreement came up.

The members of the WATER! coalition obviously are against passing the referendum which will give four water management areas in the state, including the Central and South Florida Flood Control District, the power to levy up to one mill in advalorem taxes to pay their costs.

The FCD and the Southwest Florida Water Management District already have advalorem taxing powers which could lose them should the constitutional amendment fail.

Members of WATER! brought up arguments against the measure which have been raised in other parts of the state. They say the measure would make the districts too powerful, that the legislation is too open-ended, that the FCD and the SFWM have worked "against us in the past" and that the district in the panhandle would only be able to assess .05 mills.

"I'm aware," Shevin told the group, "that many people are going to the referendum because they think it's too open-ended. I'm for the referendum because I think that in the balance, it contains a few more pluses than minuses."

Shevin's told the environmentalists the state legislature would control the taxing by the various water management areas and would therefore retain some control over them.

That was also part of his response to a question asked by Miss Jessie Freeling of Belle Glade about the appointment of the board members and whether there was another appointed board in the state which had taxing powers.

While the attorney general didn't answer her question on whether these would be the only such boards with taxing powers, Shevin did say the WATER! members could influence, but not infringe on, the governor's powers of appointment.

Mrs. Marjory Stoneman Douglas told Shevin she felt the districts haven't been well defined hydrologically and she felt the entire plan should be gone over again.

Florida Wildlife Federation Executive Secretary Johnny Jones said he had "never gotten anywhere with the FCD. When my opinion conflicted with some multi-national corporation in the Glades, I've always lost out. I've had to go to the cabinet to get justice."

Another man protested the idea of using ad valorem taxes to pay the way for the districts, that they should be funded by taxes based on how much water is consumed rather than by the amount of land owned. Shevin agreed that was one possible way the districts could raise taxes.

Dr. Joseph Orsenigo, former plant pathologist with the Agricultural Research and Education Center in Belle Glade, said that whatever is done, it will be a stop gap measure unless the rapid increase in population is brought under control.

"I don't see anyway we can legally control the population," Shevin told Orsenigo. "People come to Florida because it has so many attractions."

As long as Florida has these attractions, people will want to come here."

"Then you're never going to be able to reach to real solution," Orsenigo said. "You'll never be able to catch up. Farmers found out long ago they could only feed so many cows on so much pastureland. By the same token, we can only support so many people in South Florida. We have to face that."

Shevin touched on the maneuverings over the past year between agribusiness interests and coalitions of business and conservationists over the Reitnerberger tract and the Holey Land in the southwest part of the county.

Shevin has consistently taken the stand that the Reitnerberger Tract and the Holey Land should not be used in whole or in part for growing crops, that they should be preserved as wildlife "management" areas and for water control.

Shevin was also queried by Jones on the upcoming report on the Special Study on the Eutrophication of Lake Okeechobee and the recommended management plans. Jones said he had heard the plans were being held up in Tallahassee because of a social services cut.

The attorney general said he was unaware of any holdup and that he would, if he found there was such a delay, do what he could to speed matters up.

The report was originally supposed to have been completed in October and is now still scheduled to be turned over to the cabinet for action sometime this month.

A set of tentative plans and recommendations were distributed yesterday to members of WATER!. The plans were drawn up and submitted by Dale Walker and Curry Hutchinson of the Division of State Planning.

The report claims that backpumping is a significant contributor to the eutrophication of Lake Okeechobee and maximum reduction of backpumping will significantly reduce the eutrophic stress on the lake, particularly in the South Bay area.

Hutchinson and Walker's report goes on to say that 80 to 85 per cent reduction in nutrient input from the Everglades Agricultural Area south of Lake Okeechobee can be achieved as opposed to a 40-50 per cent reduction in the Tamiami Creek-Nubbin Slough and the surrounding River Valley.

They said the reduction backpumping can be obtained much quicker and cheaper also.

"The optimum alternative for storage of water backpumped via the Miami Canal and over half of backpumped via the North New River Canal," and over half of that backpumped via the North New River Canal," the report concludes, "is use of the Holey Land and possibly a small contiguous portion of Conservation Area 3 as a retention area."

The state cabinet is still awaiting the final report before deciding whether to leave a strip along the eastern edge of the Holey Land to the Sun Corp., which would be used as an agricultural area.

A study being made by the Gainesville engineering firm of Black Crow and Eindess for the Florida Sugar Cane League, however, says that adding such a sheet of water, which wouldn't be enough to hold what is now backpumped, would mean the loss of more than a million gallons per day through evaporation.

The report on Lake Okeechobee concludes the state needs better storage and conservation; water quality treatment; Everglades vegetation, fish and wetlands wildlife and public recreation and education as priorities.

"Uses that interfere with the above objectives," the report concludes, "should be denied."

Absentee ballots for Presidential primary ready

Absentee ballots for the presidential preference primary are now available for Glades residents at the Palm Beach County Supervisor of Elections Office at the Glades Office Building.

The forms can also be picked up at the county courthouse, Datura Street in West Palm Beach, at the Palm Beach County Courthouse Annex in Delray Beach or the North County Courthouse Annex on PGA Boulevard.

County Supervisor of Elections Jackie Winchester said the process allowed to vote by absentee ballot includes registered voters who will be

Lawrence Will Museum nears reality

The proposed Lawrence E. Will Museum, to be added to the city library as a special bicentennial project, took a giant step closer to realization Saturday when the Belle Glade Bicentennial Committee and the City Commission approved the preliminary plans.

The plans were turned over to Don Flehs, chairman of the planning subcommittee shortly before the regular committee meeting at noon Monday. The plans were approved by the committee, subject to the approval of the subcommittee and the city commissioners.

Flehs called a quick meeting of the subcommittee Monday afternoon and presented the plans to the commission Monday night during the commission's meeting.

The commission approved states along US27 on Hoover the plans, subject to legalities to be checked over by City Attorney John Baker and pursuant to changes and specificifications which might be forthcoming from architect Chester Cone.

The city also agreed to assume the burden of paying for the air conditioning for the interior lighting.

Cone included the use of floor space divided into a display area and a workshop.

Two other items which might be better, although it could be some what more expensive.

She explained that rail lighting is what must be used and preferred are going to now. She said the lighting is made up of a fairly large number of spotlights which can be moved around rail fixtures the ceiling depending on the displays on exhibit.

The next steps for the done by staff members and of the ceremonies on May 31 to be planned.

Flehs explained to both the city commission and the committee that time is now

Students representing seven Belle Glade - South Bay area schools will be participating in the May 20 Special Olympics competition designed for children with mental or emotional handicaps.

"Most people equate mental strength with physical ability," explained Fred Davis, an official of this year's Palm Beach County games. "This is a mistake a annual games are beginning to correct."

He noted that sometimes as the special athletes do have some physical handicaps, but excel in other areas.

Competition is held in track and field, events baseball, swimming, gymnastics, bowling, jumping and dashes.

A basketball competition held at a separate time from the rest of the county games. Most of the games will be held at John T. Leonard High School this year.

Davis said the attitude that mentally handicapped people are not capable of being successful in anything is something these special people have had to live with all their lives.

The Special Olympics is sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation. Locally, the organizing is handled by the Boy Scouts of America.

Palm Beach Junior is still a junior

Members of the Palm Beach Junior College Board of Trustees took advantage of a rare opportunity last Wednesday to reverse an earlier action and keep the original name of the oldest junior college in the state.

In an earlier action taken last October, to change the name of the college to the Palm Beach Community College. The vote last Wednesday retained the name, like the October vote was a 3-2 split vote.

Dr. Phillip Lichtenblau was the swing voter who made the difference. In the first vote, he argued himself won the Trustees' Stanley and George Michael, but last week, he voted along with Drs. Phillip Lichtenblau, Doug Hand and Trustee Bob Smith.

Mr. Ansted, who is president of the college, in attempting to get the name changed, Armory, has been an annual claiming the college is no event since its inception.

40 years after high school, she's going to college

A long-time and eloquent supporter of Palm Beach Junior College, Sara Upton Smith, waited 40 years between her graduation from Palmetto High School in 1935 and her registration at Palm Beach Junior College.

Start fertilizing your fruit trees now to insure good crop

Now that our fruit trees are beginning to put out their spring blossoms it is important in order to produce a good crop of fruit for next year that fertilizing be started if not already completed.

In our area most fruit trees should see their first application of fertilizer in late January or February; a second feeding in June and a third feeding in October or early November.

There are many formulas of fruit tree fertilizers available from your local garden supply store and nurseries that sell such products. One on nature bearing trees a 4-6-4 or 6-8-8 complete fertilizer containing all secondary or trace elements is recommended.

An organic manure, usually very little fertilizer is necessary, except for supplying secondary or trace elements. These should be applied at least once a year to prevent deficiencies from occurring.

Most fertilizers should be applied at the rate of one pound per application of fertilizer per square foot of the tree trunk measured near the ground level or you can use one pound per application.

Simpson announces resignation

Ien C. Simpson, who for the past three years has served an District Engineer for the Florida Department of Transportation's District in Southeast Florida, today announced his plans to end a 22 year career with the department to enter private engineering, effective Mar. 26.

In announcing his resignation, Simpson said "It was a difficult decision; I have enjoyed my long association with the department. There are many important projects in the district which I would like to see completed; the Keys Bridge, U.S. 27, U.S. 1 and I-95. However, an excellent opportunity offered to me by a private business is one which I could not refuse."

The well-known Glades area civic leader began her education in a one-room schoolhouse on Rita Island in Lake Okeechobee in 1922.

"There were 40 families living on the island at that time," Mrs. Smith said, "and we even had a U.S. Post Office."

"We moved to Georgia when I was in the second grade, and I later returned to the Glades as a senior, to attend Palmetto High, just 15 minutes away from where I and we simply couldn't afford to start school," she said.

"I attended Palmetto High for two years, then graduated at age 16.

On leaving the Glades fertilizers containing a little bit higher nitrogen level such as a 6-6-6 may be applied at intervals of six - eight weeks for the first three years.

Make sure that any fertilizer used on fruit trees contains your primary secondary elements and if the fertilizer does not contain these they must be supplied in a supplement form either a spray or dry application.

Trace element supplements are readily available at garden centers and other similar types of outlets.

There are many ways that fertilizer can be applied to fruit trees but many people prefer to place fertilizer under the canopy of the tree and around the trunk.

These holes can be made with a sharp stick, crowbar or other such implements and should not be more than six to eight inches deep.

After placing fertilizer in these holes, stepping on these holes, soiling them with water since young roots are very sensitive.

After applying fertilizer too close to the main trunk of your tree, then the next most important method called the broadcast method of fertilizing may be employed.

In the broadcast method the fertilizer is spread on the soil evenly underneath the canopy starting a foot or two away from the trunk and extending to the drop line or slightly beyond.

Do not dump fertilizer too close to the main trunk of your tree since young roots are very sensitive.

Many times injury to the tree can occur if the fertilizer is applied directly to the trunk.

BOY---then

That's my son, Jerry, literally two feet off the ground last Saturday in the top half of the ninth. His team was ahead by one run and the bases loaded when he caught the fly that ended the game.

Whatever else good happens to Jerry, I know he'll never forget that sweet thrill of victory.

Years from now, when faced with a tough situation, that memory could be the inspiration for another triumph. The things that happen to a boy do shape the man.

That's why I've always taken Jerry to our church. I want the smell of candles on the altar, the blend of voice and heart in hymn and litany, to be a part of his life. I want for him the joy that comes from understanding God.

My father did the same for me.

How about you?

Dateline HistoryWashington's Birthday Changed

By JEROME TURK & WM. D. ELLIS

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Feb. 12, 1776 -- What manner of this Commander-in-Chief or ours in his 44th birthday?

I was about to awaken William Ellis to get his opinion on this when I stopped. Still in his mud-spattered sartout, Ellis was deep in open-mouthed slumber, lying spread-eagled on the bed of our chilly garret lodgings here.

I had been hard on Ellis. Mistaking my instructions, my new colleague had smuggled himself into enemy-held Boston (& miraculously out again) to report the conditions there.

The moment he returned, I berated him as a foolish dunce, then commanded him on the story. Sometime in the castigation and reprimand, the exhausted fellow dropped off to sleep.

In any event, a curious and more immediate question suddenly popped into my mind: what, exactly, is the date of General George Washington's birthday. For the first 20 years of his life, he wrote it "The 11th of February." But now he marks it on the 22nd of this month.

The culprit is the New Style calendar. For any American or Englishman born before Sept. 1, 1752, 11 days are missing in their life. All birthdays have shifted forward by as much.

The confusion started nearly 200 years ago when some astronauts advised Pope Gregory XXII in Rome that the seasons were beginning to arrive ten days earlier than shown on the calendar calculated in the time of Julius Caesar.

In 1582 the Roman Catholic nations of Europe adopted the new Gregorian calendar, putting the dates & the seasons back in synchronization with the earth's own revolution around the sun. Not so Great Britain, which had already split with Rome and still detests popes & things papist to this day. Britain waited 170 years.

That stubbornness didn't help the British calendar any since the seasons were running eleven days late by the middle of this century. Only 24 years ago, George the Second got around to fixing things for the English speaking world. He declared that the day following September 2, 1752 should be called September 14. Thus General Washington's birthday, to be accurate, is February 11 (or for "Old Style") or February 22 in New Style calendar.

In these troubled times neither the date nor the birthday seem to matter much. There will be no celebrations, public or private, for the General. The big man with the craggy face and the penetrating gray-blue eyes will, as usual, ride at 4 a.m. and begin work at his headquarters here at the Vassal house. He will, as usual, carefully guard his personal frustrations from any, tell tale remarks overheard by a visitor.

Yet only last month, the General confided in a private letter that he would rather have "retired to the back country and live in a wigwam" instead of accepting command of this rag-tag Continental Army.

It is fortunate that General Washington is a man of great physical strength. At 210 pounds, he stands 6 feet 2 inches tall and his hands are 10 inches wide with heavy musculature. He has reddish-brown hair, usually covered with a powdered wig. He has poor teeth & a rather pale, colorless skin which burns easily in the sun. He also has large hands & feet. Some say his boot size is the largest they have ever seen.

The General carried himself straight as an Indian & rides exceptionally well, his favorite sport in by-gone years having been the fox, theatre & dancing at social affairs.

But the past is past. Now the reluctant 44-year-old Virginian, who has accepted my pay as Commander-in-Chief, must prove himself in battle against some of the world's finest troops.
